Summary

The second Aerospace IT conference delivered thought leaders and innovators from leading and trusted brands in the aviation & aerospace industry. The two-day agenda focused on the challenges and opportunities within digital transformation in aerospace. MROs, airlines, OEMs and stakeholders from across the value chain, came together to consider the applications of data and connectivity and the new commercial opportunities presented by industry 4.0. The conference forum fostered intimate networking and multiple occasions for building relationships and forming new partnerships.

“This conference was of value due to the ability to network with stakeholders in the industry and to learn from each other.”

"As an industry leading tech company, keeping a pulse on tech trends is critical. The Aerospace IT conference facilitated that goal with well curated content and speakers. I feel like it sparked many valuable conversations on the current landscape and future of aerospace IT. Technology adoption in the aviation aftermarket segment has made significant progress in the last couple of years, but it still has a long way to go. I look forward to seeing how this conference continues to evolve along the way."
